Serve the audience and prioritize clarity

"As a futurist, my role is to translate complex ideas – from science and demographics to global trends and technological advancements – into clear, compelling insights that resonate with everyone in the audience," highlights Nikki Greenberg, Highly Commended in the AI and Future Technologies Speaker 2025, and Thought Leadership Speaker 2025 categories.

"In a room with 1,500+ people with different life experiences, levels of tech-savviness, and knowledge-bases, my job is to make the future accessible and exciting. My top tip: remember that your role is to serve the audience, not to showcase how smart you are." Greenberg says. "Avoid jargon, stay grounded, and focus on clarity. A great keynote doesn't just inform – it inspires, translates complexity into meaning, and motivates people to take action."
